Artificial support is powerless to check general selling by real holders of securities, who act always on their own conviction that the value of their shares has become impaired. The action of the market on Monday morning showed conclusively that there was no general liquidation to be faced. Real holdties. The timid class of holders had evidently done their selling during the previous week at the threat of the calamity which fell on the market during Friday night. The professional bears, instead of seeing prices dip so as to afford a profit on the short sale, saw a sudden rebound, which forced them to buy back at a loss, emphasizing the recovery by their bidding for stocks. Evidently the action of the market was a surprise to the whole speculative world. Commission houses had orders to buy at the market, which represented the hopes of bargain hunters that the opening drop in prices would afford a price level that would make profitable investments. ments. These orders were executed at prices from 3 to 6 points higher than the previous Friday's closing. This condition of affairs, added to the enormous supporting orders for account of great capitalists, resulted in the overstimulation of the market. Many brokerage houses also had additional orders to buy at fixed prices below the market, which would have proved an obstacle to any fall. These technical causes must not be lost sight of in justly estimating the manner of the recovery, although they do impair the significance bonds, the diversion of internal revenue collections into bank depositories, the an-ticipation of October government interest payments and the normal increase in pension payments incident to the midmonthly

The gain in cash from the subtreasury has been augmented to many millions through the redemption of government Last week's loan contraction resulting from the liquidation in the stock market also sensibly relieved the position of the banks. The importance of early imperts of gold has somewhat diminished in view of this relief from domestic sources. but the almost hourly expectation of gold engagements has played its part in sustaining the stock market. The fact that exchange rates have not actually crossed the profitable gold-import point, although one small engagement was made, is accounted for by the less urgent pressure for money in New York. A movement of gold to New York is confidently anticipated, but exchange authorities differ widely in their opinions of the probable volume of the movement. The amount of this country's unliquidated credit balance abroad has grown debatable, owing to our large purchases of home securities from foreign holders and large borrowings by American syndicates from foreign capitalists. The recent large receipts of Australian gold. which have found their way ultimately to New York bank reserves, cuts off a customary source of supply for London and, in fact, represents liquidation of London obligations to New York, thus lessening future claims. Liquidation in Amalgamated Copper, Other Securities Buoyant. [Meyer & Kiser's Telegram.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 .- Interest at the opening was centered on Amalgamated Copper, and the rest of the market was comparatively neglected. The pressure to opening prices being from 4 to 6 points being the stock was held fairly steady by heavy covering of shorts, but subsequently renewed liquidation made its appearance. carrying the stock down to 100. From this figure it rallied rather feebly, and finally closed less than I per cent. above the lowest of the day. During the early part of the session the rest of the market was inclined to sympathize with the weakness in Copper. The strongest features were the local traction stocks, all of which enjoyed substantial advances. The buying of Manhattan was thought to be for inside interests, and was accompanied by the story that the company was now earning at the rate of 7 per cent, on the stock and that the installation of electricity would result in decreased expenses and increased earnings. Anticipation of a good bank statement caused a good deal of covering and also MISCELLANEOUS.

GOOD WEEK IN BUSINESS

So large were the gatherings at Indianapolis last week that despite the sadness on ccount of the funeral ceremonies of the late President trade was active. Cheap rates brought in many retail merchants and they were liberal buyers. Especially did the dry goods houses, the hat and cap dealers, the milliners, the confectioners and wholesale grocery houses have a very busy week. Changes in prices were few. One advance was made in sugars, two in linseed in active request, those in storage being NEW YORK, Sept. 21.-The statement of withdrawn to meet the demand. Choice as high as 15 cents was paid the past week. Loans, decrease ......$6,216,900 Poultry, as well, met with large sale and of stock, but a break is looked for during the coming week. Fruits and vegetables ...... 6,275,900 are fast movers if choice at best quota-Reserve required, decrease ....... 267,755 tions. With the exception of Irish potatoes the vegetable supply is large. Inferior floating a lesser loan for Russian railroads. The banks now hold $13,654,225 in excess
